Photography during the Civil War

Think of the heroes of the American Revolution. How do we perceive them? More often than not we picture them as older men with white hair and a stern look. Left, image of Ambrotype Union Drummer Boy.

Now think of the Civil War. Images of brave young men some nearly children spring to mind. Why the difference? Photography! Not only the images of Brady, but the thousands of personal and often nameless photographs that the boys made to send home to the ones they loved.

There would be four main types of photographs that our ancestors would be familiar with during the war: The Daguerreotype, Ambrotype, Tintype and CdV. The following is a brief description of each one.

The Daguerreotype: To make the image, a daguerreotypist would polish a sheet of silver-plated copper to a mirror finish, treat it with fumes that made its surface light sensitive, expose it in a camera for as long as was judged to be necessary, which could be as little as a few seconds for brightly sunlit subjects or much longer with less intense lighting; make the resulting latent image on it visible by fuming it with mercury vapor; remove its sensitivity to light by liquid chemical treatment, rinse and dry it, then seal the easily marred result behind glass in a protective enclosure.

The image is on a mirror-like silver surface, normally kept under glass, and will appear either positive or negative, depending on the angle at which it is viewed, how it is lit and whether a light or dark background is being reflected in the metal. The darkest areas of the image are simply bare silver; lighter areas have a microscopically fine light-scattering texture. The surface is very delicate, and even the lightest wiping can permanently scuff it.

Ambrotype: The ambrotype was based on the wet plate collodion process invented by Frederick Scott Archer. Ambrotypes were deliberately underexposed negatives made by that process. In the US, ambrotypes first came into use in the early 1850s.

Ambrotypes were much less expensive to produce than daguerreotypes however they appeared dull and drab when compared with the brilliance of a well-made and properly viewed daguerreotype.

By the late 1850s, the ambrotype was overtaking the daguerreotype in popularity. By the mid-1860s, the ambrotype itself was being replaced by the tintype, a similar image on a sturdy black-lacquered thin iron sheet, as well as by photographic albumen paper prints made from glass plate collodion negatives.

The Tintype: Compared to their most important predecessor, the daguerreotype, tintypes were not only very inexpensive, they were also relatively easy and quick to make. A photographer could prepare, expose, develop and varnish a tintype plate and have it ready for the customer in a few minutes. Although early tintypes were sometimes mounted in protective ornamental cases, like daguerreotypes and ambrotypes, uncased tintypes in simple paper mats were popular from the beginning.

One or more hardy, lightweight, thin tintypes could be carried conveniently in a jacket pocket, making them very popular in the United States during the American Civil War.

The CdV.: The carte de visite (French: visiting card), abbreviated CdV, was a type of small photograph which was patented in Paris during 1854. It was usually made of an albumen print, which was a thin paper photograph mounted on thicker paper card. Left, CdV image of General John Hartranft. The carte de visite was slow to gain widespread use until 1859 when Emperor Napoleon III's photos where published in this format. This made the format an overnight success. The new invention was so popular it was known as "cardomania" and it spread throughout Europe and then quickly to America and the rest of the world.

Each photograph was the size of a visiting card, and such photograph cards were traded among friends and visitors. Albums for the collection and display of cards became a common fixture in Victorian parlors. The immense popularity of these card photographs led to the publication and collection of photographs of prominent persons.

No matter what type of photographic process our ancestors where immortalized with the importance is what is in the image: young men, proud and hopeful fighting for a noble cause. Today they serve as a reminder keeping green the memory of the boys in blue.

National Patriotic Instructor's Message

Preservation and restoration are two terms which are continually facing us each day. Carrying out of these principles could very well determine our future of these principles could very wen determine our future.

We have read and heard of drives for financial and physical means for the preservation of lands adjacent to our Battlefields. Without the purchase and ruling hand of authority over such fields near Manassas, Antietam and Gettysburg, we will face the danger of losing the full view of those sacred soils. Congress authorized certain funds with limitations. Each year this action must be renewed beginning with the fiscal year. I urge you all to write your Congressmen requesting their support of this action.

soils. Congress authorized certain funds with limitations. Each year this action must be renewed beginning with the fiscal year. I urge you all to write your Congressmen requesting their support of this action. Do it now before it is too late.

Restoration also plays an important part of our heritage. Daily we face proposed highway construction in our towns and cities. Many community memorials erected to the memory of hometown men and boys, who served with the Grand Army of the Republic, were erected along these roads, which now must be widened to keep up with modern changes. Several times during the past few years, our support with letters to local efficials has assisted in the relocation of these memorials to places of honor.

Recently this office received an example of what one of our Brothers accomplished in New York City. Past Camp Commander Bert Sack of Camp 26, located the statue of a Union Soldier holding his rifle, which was removed from the West Farms Soldier Cemetery by the Public Works Authority of New York.

Bro. Sack investigated the cause of removing the statue, located it in a warehouse in the Department of Public Works. Through subscriptions from the Sons of Union Veterans, Sons of Confederate Veterans and other veteran units and individuals, Bro. Sack raised enough money to repair and re-

Who Are Entitled Top Pensions?

The question is often asked, "Who are entitled to draw pension?" The act of Congress, passed July, 1862, made liberal provision for providing pensions to disabled or invalid soldiers who have served in the army of the Union since the 4th of March, 1861, and also to all widows and children (under sixteen years of age,) as well as mothers and dependent sisters of soldiers killed in battle, or who shall die by reason of wounds received or diseases contracted while in the line of duty. The provisions, as a whole, are much more liberal than the old pension laws for the Revolution or the war of 1812. The amount of pensions for total disabilitity [sic] are fixed as follows:

Noncommissioned officers, musicians and privates, per month $8; Second Lieutenants, $15; First Lieutenants, $17; Captains, $20; Majors, $25; all officers of higher rank, $30. But a large majority of those accepted as pensioners are only partially disabled, and the amount of pension is rated according to their disability, which may be one-fourth, one-third, one-half, two-thirds, &c. The disability is based on the proportion which the effects of a wound received or disease contracted in public service actually disables one from obtaining a livelihood.

At latest camp meeting, Donald J Madar was given the oath of membership obligation by camp chaplain David W Demmy, Sr., and in photo below was pinned with his membership badge by Junior Vice Commander Scott Debo.

Brother Donald, of Chambers Hill, Harrisburg, comes to us as an Associate Brother of our grand patriotic organization, the SUVCW.

In near future, we hope to provide the oath of obligation to newly elected brother, Forrest C Myers, of Enola, PA.

Memorial Day weekend for Brothers of camp 15

On Saturday May 25, 2019 Brother Brothers and family will be everywhere in the Susquehanna Valley honoring their civil war ancestors and veterans at large. A contingent of Brothers will be present at cemeteries on 27th too.

First, Brothers and friends will gather in Harrisburg for breakfast and then mosey over to historic Harrisburg Cemetery, entrance near 13th and State streets. Harrisburg Cemetery, listed in the National Registry of Historic Places, holds local and national history, as well.

Breakfast at 8 a.m. at American Dream Diner [SHOWN THIS PAGE] on Herr Street between 18th and 20th streets near Arsenal Blvd. If the back room is open, we shall use that space due to the number of Brothers enjoying fully cooked breakfast of their choice! Pay as you go! [And then, we'll move onto historic Harrisburg Cemetery, cross over 13th at State Street, a mere few blocks from Diner]. Wear good walking shoes or boots for the ruff conditions of the old cemetery.

Queries are invited. DoubleD@Demmy.cc

Blessings to all Brothers who participate in these events to honor America's veterans!

On the Road with Camp 15

April meeting will be conducted on Sunday, April 28, one week following Easter at NCWM bldg., upper level room 222, at 2 pm, high atop Reservoir Park!

Our Brother Greg Kline is a 'PCC' of Camp 15 and also of the newly established Camp 503 in Sunbury. Currently he is our Camp secretary and also, the Pennsylvania Department Senior Vice Commander, which means he is on the path to become the Pennsylvania Department Commander 'DC' this year 2019 at the PA Department Encampment Convention to be held at Crown Plaza at King of Prussia exit off of turnpike.

The dates for this event are June 27-29 and it was voted at 2018 encampment to go back to 2-day encampment affair with events/tours of the area.

To support Brother Greg's promotion to Department Commander, one of 30 other commanders across our nation, we are making this plea to you to reserve this event and dates and to do all in your power to attend and, not only vote for Greg, but support him in his endeavors and goals for our Department, the largest Department among our grand patriotic organization.
